What we do

Our firm provides important insight and plain English guidance around school finances. We understand that a school proprietor may struggle to make sense of the financial reporting process, and we see one of our key roles as decoding the numbers.

Our in-depth knowledge in the accounting and education sectors is a result of many years' experiences of our partners in consulting, and our strong relationships with many schools. We fully understand all the key accounting and financial issues that schools face, and recognize the importance of quantifying a school's financial position to facilitate future planning.

We use modern online systems, to deliver schools increased transparency, understanding, and control of their finances. This allows principals, executive officers and trustees to make informed and timely decisions when investing in learning resources.

We believe all schools should be able to plan for the future with clarity, while using time-saving processes that AideOne has developed.

Our Promise

When you bring the AideOne team on board, we will:

- Provide you with accurate real-time, monthly, and annual reporting that explains your school's financial position.
- Help you achieve greater control of your school's financial information, and expenditure.
- Minimize cost and administration time savings, wherever possible.
- Always explain complex concepts and findings in plain English, with no mumbo-jumbo.
- Support your long-term operational and maintenance planning.
- Increase your confidence when making investment decisions.
- Be available long after the implementation of your online system is complete, as a trusted advisor.

Our 360° Support for schools asks the right questions, understands your unique requirements and adds value by helping you plan for the future.
